

NEW EARTHQUAKES HIT YUGOSLAVIA

BLIZZARD WHIPS MID-WEST; 15 DEAD

STORM CENTER MOVES EASTWARD; OHIO ON STORM'S OUTER EDGE

Chicago Almost Isolated By Snows; Lake Shipping Menaced; Roads Are Blocked; More Snow Promised Ohio

CHICAGO, March 9. — Choked by mountainous snow drifts that blocked highways, paralyzed communications and isolated entire communities, Chicago and the upper Mississippi valley states struggled today to free themselves from the grip of the two day March blizzard that took a toll of at least fifteen lives.

The blizzard's force had apparently blown itself out here in the middle west as the storm center swung eastward over the Great Lakes region.

Twelve lives were lost in Chicago's metropolitan area as the city battled drifts seven to twenty feet high and sub-freezing temperatures. Three persons lost their lives in Wisconsin. The estimated cost of the storm to Chicago alone was $1,250,000.

Besides the fifteen known to have died from the blizzard, four sailors are believed to have perished aboard the fishing tug Palmer in Lake Michigan. The small craft was last seen Saturday southeast of Kenosha, Wis., battling huge waves that were whipped up by a forty-five mile an hour gale.

Snow had ceased falling early today after 157 inches had descended in thirty-six hours. In many places drifts had piled to a depth of fifteen feet here due to the high winds.

Thirty-five thousand laborers, put to work with picks and shovels, succeeded in relieving the virtual isolation of many sections of the metropolitan area and surrounding territories.

Despite the efforts of highway crews and shovel gangs, many of the main highways leading into Chicago were still blocked today. Fear of a milk shortage in the metropolitan area was allayed when it was announced that a sufficient supply is available until rural routes are opened.

Higher temperatures were promised today by weather forecasters, an element which is expected to aid in clearing away the drifts.

DAYTON POLICEMAN KILLS MAN; FAMILY QUARREL IS BLAMED

Shooting Is Probed After Gun Battle Ends Fatally

DAYTON, O., March 9. — One man was dead today as the result of a three-cornered pistol duel in a darkened house here last night. Two of the participants in the scrap which was believed to have started from a family row, escaped unhurt.

The victim of the shooting escapade was Edward Coy, 29. He was shot through the heart by a bullet fired by Patrolman R. L. Berger in the home of Norman Barlow, Coy's brother-in-law. There was no noise, and thinking the call to be a "false alarm," the police left, leaving Berger to patrol the house.

Shortly afterward, Coy emerged from the darkened house. Berger commanded him to halt but he thrust out a revolver and replied: "Stick 'em up or I'll blow you up," the patrolman reported.

Berger drew his revolver and ordered Coy back into the house. He followed and as he entered the door the shooting began. Several shots were fired and when the smoke had cleared away, Coy lay dead with a bullet in his heart. Investigation started immediately. Police said they believed a family squabble between Coy and Barlow was responsible for the trouble.

TREASURY BALANCE
WASHINGTON, March 9.—Treasury statement as of March 6: Treasury balance, $120,707,971.79. Expenditures, $5,818,229.71. Customs receipts, $5,884,109.49.

REPUBLICANS WILL FACE PROBLEM OVER PROHIBITION ALSO

La Guardia Moves For Committee Session To Meet Issue

WASHINGTON, March 9.—While it is generally taken for granted by politicians of both parties that President Hoover will be re-nominated next year, and that he will run for re-election as an outright dry, indications are multiplying that the Republicans are going to have to share some of the grief over the prohibition issue.

There is a small but militant minded Republican group who are not going to see the party line on solidly with the dries in 1932 without a struggle. Probably they will make little headway, but they are nevertheless determined to make a fight, and any fight is not without its embarrassing features.

For example, Rep. La Guardia (R) of New York, came out today with a demand for the Republicans to stage a meeting of their national committee and deal "courageously" with the issue as the Democrats did here last week. His proposal was greeted with a lot of h-a-h-a's by regular Republican leaders, and it will, of course, get nowhere. But his action nevertheless was indicative of a feeling that strongly pervades some sections of the party.

The Republicans of New York went bodily over into the wet camp in the 1930 election, adopting for the first time a wet platform and nominating an avowed opponent of prohibition for governor. New Jersey Republicans were already there, Illinois, Wisconsin and Rhode Island Republicans are vigorously opposed to prohibition, and there is a strongly anti-prohibition strain in the Republican organizations in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Pennsylvania.

Not all of the Republicans in these states are going to see President Hoover take the party into the prohibition camp without protest.

"One thing must be said for the Democrats—they at least had the courage to discuss prohibition in the open," said La Guardia.

"Prohibition is crowding all other issues out of consideration. The Republican party should not over-emphasize the wet split in the Democratic party, nor underestimate the strength of the Democratic party with a wet platform. The solid dry Democratic south will vote the Democratic ticket in 1932 even if the platform is wringing wet. This will give their presidential candidate 144 electoral votes at the start. A dry Republican running on a dry platform with the present temper of the country would be in danger of losing Illinois, 29 votes; Massachusetts, 18; New Jersey, 14; New York, 45; Rhode Island, 5; Wisconsin, 13; and Ohio, 24—or 293 electoral votes. Irrespective of the doubtful votes. Only 246 electoral votes are required to elect a president.

"In all fairness," he concluded, "millions of Republicans are entitled to know just what side their party will take on prohibition in 1932. It is highly desirable that the question be freely and openly discussed within party circles before convention time.

"The Republican leadership have within their power to sacrifice victory for prohibition, the southern Democrats will be ready to sacrifice prohibition for victory."

SEEK GUN WIELDER AFTER THREE SHOT

STEVENSVILLE, O., March 9.—Jefferson County authorities today sought Rocco Ciansagione, 34, a millworker for questioning in connection with the shooting of two men and a woman at Minzo Junction, near here Sunday night. Mrs. Ida Rossi, 28, a widow and Curci Darduso, 30, mill worker were in a critical condition, perhaps fatally wounded, while Jesus Renteria, 31, suffered a bullet wound in the back.

The hunted man and Mrs. Rossi, at one time had obtained a license to marry but had not done so. Darduso and Mrs. Rossi may have been victims of jealousy, authorities suggested.

MANY HURT IN RIOTS

KASSEL, Germany, March 9.—Many were injured in a street battle today when police attempted to disperse a parade of Communists headed by a music band.

The reds were on the way to the courthouse where ninety-eight of them were scheduled to appear for trial on charges of creating public disturbances. As a result of the battle with police, only three of the defendants appeared in court.

RACKETEER SLAIN

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 9.—Half a dozen gangsters were sought today for questioning in the murder of Lawrence Volpi, described by police as a "racketeer." His body was riddled with bullets in a pistol battle in a road house near here Sunday.

RUNAWAY CARS ARE BLAMED FOR FIRE

SALINEVILLE, O., March 9.—Two strayed freight cars which broke loose from a train and crashed into the basement of a storeroom, upsetting a coal stove, today were declared responsible for a $50,000 fire here yesterday. Damage to eighteen other detailed box cars and the two-story brick and frame buildings, which suffered in the accident and consequent fire, was believed to be more than $100,000.

A westbound train of ninety cars and pusher locomotive broke in the center and threw several of its cars into the path of an approaching eastbound train. Two cars hurtled into a basement of a building owned by Anthony Rikart, where a stove, upset as a result, started the fire.

Firemen could not prevent the destruction by fire of the Rikart building or of an adjoining structure owned by Thomas Reil.

WEDDING PLANS ARE HALTED BY DEATH

PINDLAY, O., March 9.—Plans for the wedding of Miss Edith Prox of Cincinnati, were halted today following the death of her fiancé, Harry C. Miller, 30, Cincinnati garage owner, in an automobile accident near here Sunday afternoon.

Miller was driving to Toledo to meet his intended bride, when the accident occurred, Richard Bloom, 22, of Kenton, whom Miller had picked up in Canton, received a brain concussion in the crash. Wedding ceremonies for the Millers were to have been held next week.

CHAPLIN GUARDED FROM BERLIN FANS

BERLIN, March 9.—Berlin mobilized its police reserves today to prevent the crowds from mobbing Charlie Chaplin on his arrival here from London.

Strong cordons of police were posted around a hotel where the American comedian has reserved a suite during his stay. He will make personal appearances at the premiere of his latest picture, returning to London on Friday.

TRAIN RIDERS CRUSHED BY FREIGHT IN CAR

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Two freight train riders brought every rescue facility of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the local fire rescue squad into action when a shipment of heavy pipe wedged them against the side of a gondola. The sudden stopping of the train here shifted the pipe upon them.

Homes Wrecked, Flooded; Wintry Gales Also Strike Europe

NEW YORK, March 9.—Damage to property amounting to millions was caused by Sunday's wind and rain storm along the Atlantic seaboard, it was estimated today. Damage in New York City was placed at $1,000,000.

In New York seven persons were dead, victims in automobile accidents caused by wind and gale.

Along the New Jersey and Long Island coast lines, sea walls were torn away and cottages wrecked. Many homes were inundated and trees and telegraph poles snapped to the ground.

Seventy-five families were virtually marooned in their homes here when heavy rains caused sewers to back up, flooding the streets. In Brooklyn waters of New York harbor swept an area of almost a mile, flooding cellars and homes.

Violent winds ripped off a section of the roof of a church in the Bronx just as 200 children were filling out from mass. None was injured.

Cloudy and colder weather with the possibility of rain or snow was predicted for today. Fair, warmer weather was promised Tuesday.

At Staten Island 4,000 bungalows were flooded. The tide was reported the highest on the island in twenty-five years.

Coney Island, Sheepshead Bay, East Hampton, Monmouth Beach, Seabright and Asbury Park all reported damage.

Almost two inches of rainfall was reported during Sunday. The torrents materially increased the city's water supply, which had been at a low mark.

LONDON, March 9.—Winter gales accompanied by ice and snow had swept Europe today, with forecasts of more to come.

For the third time this winter the Seine in Paris rose to dangerous levels, with many cellars and buildings along the quays flooded. Extreme cold weather prevailed throughout France.

Germany reported biting cold, with bad snowstorms raging in a number of sections. Austria was also in the grip of a belated winter. The Balkans, in addition to disastrous quakes, experienced cold and snow.

High tides and waves pounded the British shores, causing much property damage. Small shipping was driven into harbors for shelter, and a few Atlantic liners were delayed over the week end.

Gales and snow produced the coldest weather in years in England, Scotland and along coastal points.

GOODRICH COMPANY OPERATES AT LOSS

AKRON, O., March 9.—The B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., operated at a loss of $8,374,148 after interest and depreciation during 1930, the company's annual report revealed today.

Sales were reported at $155,256,245, compared with $164,494,958 in 1929.

A readjusted executive committee consisting of chairman D. M. Goodrich, president, J. D. Tew, A. H. Marks, George M. Moffett and C. M. Keys, was announced today with the release of the company's financial statement. Marks, Moffett and Keys, all of New York, are new members of the committee, drafted from the board of directors.

HOOVER'S RETURN

WASHINGTON, March 9.—President and Mrs. Hoover returned to the White House in time for breakfast today after spending the week end in Asheville, N. C., with their son, Herbert Jr., who is recuperating from a tubercular infection. They found his condition greatly improved.

DISCOVERY OF THE CRIME

When Della Barker, 15, daughter of the accused man, and granddaughter of the slain veteran, came to Gay's home for a pajama party Sunday afternoon.

Coroner Harry Glaser, returning a murder verdict, believed the crime had been committed sometime before daybreak Sunday.

Discovery of the crime came about when Della Barker, 15, daughter of the accused man, and granddaughter of the slain veteran, came to Gay's home for a pajama party Sunday afternoon.

REVEALS DETAILS OF "LOVE MART"

Details of a "love mart" which supplied pretty young girls at a price of $200 as companions for prominent Los Angeles business men, have allegedly been revealed by Olive Clark Day, upper right, arrested on charges of a statutory offense against Charles Tauber, 18, upper left. "I am facing San Quentin prison, that's why I am ready to talk," Miss Day, once known as Dorothy Clark, is said to have declared. William H. Jobelmann, 36, lower left, her common law husband, and John P. Mills, 40, lower right, wealthy broker, were arraigned on the same charge. Miss Day asserted she interviewed the girls for listing with Jobelmann. Forty-six men are said to have been on the active list of the market's patrons.

AUTO CRASH REVEALS ALLEGED NARCOTIC SMUGGLING ATTEMPT

FREMONT, O., March 9.—Two men and two women, who are confined in Memorial Hospital here with injuries received in an automobile crash, were placed under arrest by Fremont police today on charges of smuggling dope.

The suspects in the dope charge are Howard Bell, 40, of Detroit, who is believed near death from a fractured skull and a broken leg and arm; Mrs. Margaret Pendley, 65, Toledo, who sustained a broken arm and nose; Lawrence Leed, 42, Detroit, broken leg, and his wife, Mrs. Margaret Leed, 40, who received a badly lacerated head.

A police guard was placed at the beds of the four persons and federal authorities at Toledo and Detroit were notified when officials discovered a quantity of alleged narcotics and a hypodermic needle in the wrecked automobile in which the quartet was riding when it was struck by a north-bound Lake Shore traction car.

ARMED BANDITS ROB DOWNTOWN STORE; STEAL CASH, WATCHES

Posing as customers, two armed bandits, unmasked, held up the proprietor and woman cashier of The Xenia Mercantile Co., 12 E. Second St., in the business district at 9:40 o'clock Saturday night and escaped with $22.15 in cash and eight or nine watches valued at $90.

There were no customers in the store at the time when a young

AGED VETERAN IS MURDERED

Son-In-Law Held On Killing Charge

ZANESVILLE, O., March 9.—Muskingum County authorities today held Samuel Barker, 53, as a suspect in the murder of his father-in-law, Henry Gay, ninety-year-old Civil War veteran, who was found beaten to death Sunday in his home at Cannelville, near here.

Sheriff William Curtis and Prosecutor Charles L. Leasure, investigated clues in the case which pointed to robbery as a motive. Gay, they said, had received his pension check March 4.

The aged victim was found lying on the floor of his home, head battered in, and hands and legs bound with leather thongs. Bloodhounds immediately brought to the murder scene, when loosed, ran directly to the Barker home, authorities declared.

Discovery of the crime came about when Della Barker, 15, daughter of the accused man, and granddaughter of the slain veteran, came to Gay's home for a pajama party Sunday afternoon.

Coroner Harry Glaser, returning a murder verdict, believed the crime had been committed sometime before daybreak Sunday.

AUTO KILLS BOY

RICHMOND, Ky., March 9.—The Sunday morning death of Harold Sallee, 10, who was fatally injured while en route to Sunday School, today was held to have been unavoidable, and Everett Porter, 20, of Beattyville, driver of the car that struck the boy, was exonerated of all blame. Porter hurried the boy to a hospital where he died an hour later. Police said that Porter unavoidably struck the boy when he darted in front of his car.

TWO MORE KILLED

CLEVELAND, March 9.—Traffic fatalities in Cleveland had increased to forty-four today with the deaths of Mrs. Mary Telzow, 61, and Mrs. Effie Youngman, 51. Mrs. Telzow died of a fractured skull and Mrs. Youngman of internal injuries received in traffic accidents.

BELIEVE MORE THAN 150 DEAD IN WIDE AREA

Thirty-Four Towns Are Damaged Or Razed; Relief Rushed

BELGRADE, March 9.—New earthquake shocks brought added panic today to residents of a wide area of southeastern Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Greece, where a succession of temblors has killed at least 150 persons and damaged or destroyed thirty-four towns and villages.

While disrupted telephone and telegraph facilities prevented a full authentic check-up of the casualties caused by the disastrous quakes, unofficial estimates placed the dead as high as 800. Official reports from authorities of the affected towns and villages gave the figure of 150 dead and 300 seriously injured.

Throughout this morning slight earth tremors rocked the quake area, leveling homes and buildings weakened by the earlier quakes. The few inhabitants who had remained in the towns over the week end fled into the open country, joining other survivors in temporary camps.

A partial check-up today showed that twenty towns and villages in southern Yugoslavia had been either badly damaged or demolished. A similar fate befell eight municipalities in Greece and six in Bulgaria.

Government relief measures were immediately set in motion. A nationwide relief fund was started in Yugoslavia, while King Alexander issued an unusual decree permitting all soldiers who had enlisted from towns in the quake area to return to their homes to aid in rehabilitating their families and friends. The king has established temporary headquarters in Nish, from where he is personally directing relief measures.

FIGHT OVER YELLOW DOG BILL EXPECTED TO OCCUPY SOLONS

Many Battles Face Assembly in Move To Clear Calendar

COLUMBUS, O., March 9.—"Fight week," promising genuine legislative combat over various unconsolidated syndicates of the gasoline tax, and a method of clearing the senate's clogged calendar, opened in the general assembly today as members of both branches returned for their Monday night session.

Though the early skirmishes will be staged on the floor of the house, action on all of the same subjects of controversy may reach the senate before Thursday's recess.

The first row probably will be over the "yellow dog" bill, supported by organized labor, which proposes to outlaw all contracts between employers and employees which provide that employees shall not join labor unions. Friends of employers hostile to organized labor are expected to fight the bill with all their strength.

Township trustees and county commissioners have aided to battle for the passage of the Secret-Bostwick bill realigning gasoline tax money.

The bill proposes giving less gasoline tax money to the state highway department for its direct expenditure and more to townships, counties and city councils for use on local roads.

Patriotic organizations, including daughters of the American Revolution, the Reserve Officers' Association, and others, are armed to oppose the Silbert bill to repeal criminal syndicates laws enacted during the World War.

Strife in the senate will involve supporters of a proposal to draw up a "calendar committee" in an effort to put important bills in front of the list of matters now before that branch.

Democrats will demand that the committee, unlike other senate committees, include as many Republicans as Democrats. In order that they may push whatever party bills they have.

Since a two-thirds vote is necessary to create a committee, the Democrats probably will be able to compel Republicans to accept their demands, although it was expected that the point will not be yielded without a struggle.

The $50,000 emergency appropriation bill to furnish temporary jobs for the needy unemployed was expected to be submitted to the house tonight or tomorrow. It promises to occupy much of the legislature's time this week.

BANDITS LOOT DAYTON STORE

Blind Victims With Flashlight

DAYTON, O., Mar. 9.—Two bandits who use a flashlight's glare to blind their victims during the act of robbery were sought here today by police.

That system was employed successfully here last night by two men who entered the Liberal Market and held up Max Sherer, son of Abe Sherer, proprietor, of $1,500 in cash and $800 in checks.

One of the intruders pointed a revolver at Sherer. The other directed the rays of a flashlight in Sherer's eyes so he couldn't see what was happening.

When Sherer recovered from his temporary blindness, the cash and checks had disappeared from the store's cash register and the two men, along with the automobile they had parked near the curb outside, also had vanished.

HIT-SKIP DRIVER KILLS WATCHMAN

DAYTON, O., March 9.—A hit-skip truck driver was being hunted by police here today to be charged with the death of Frederick M. Lambert, 59, Pennsylvania Railroad watchman.

Lambert was hit by a coal truck while he stood in the middle of the street and hurled almost into the path of a passenger train in charge of Engineer H. M. Fisher of Xenia.

Witnesses said the train did not strike him, however, and it was thought that his death was caused by the force of the blow from the coal truck.

BANKER ON TRIAL ON FRAUD CHARGE

CINCINNATI, O., March 9.—Joseph Castellini, former president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks National Bank here, went on trial today charged with violating national bank laws.

which were so violent between 1:51 and 3:20 a. m. Sunday that they broke the apparatus at the Seismographic Institute here, was about 266 miles from here on the Yugoslav-Bulgarian frontier. Other parts of Greece, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia were hit less violently.

As far as could be ascertained, the towns of Pirava, Valandovo and Demikapir were totally destroyed, scores of the inhabitants being crushed and buried under falling masonry. Other communities running in a wide strip from southern Serbia through Bulgaria to the Black Sea were extensively damaged, with disheartening wreckage everywhere in the west Bulgarian territory between Ghevehlil and Strumitza.

Numerous houses tumbled down in the city of Salonika; the Bulgarian village of Lesky was wiped out. Landslides in the wake of the tremors wrecked the Uskup-Salonika bridge, interrupting railway traffic at many points.

The worst of the shocks, which already had terrified the population of South Serbia Friday night, occurred during the pitch-dark, stormy early Sunday morning. Information received here indicated that panic followed the tremors in practically all affected areas, the populace rushing in the scantiest clothing into the open, screaming and praying.

In some places the earthquakes opened hot volcanic springs, while elsewhere they sucked away smaller rivers and wells into great cavities that rent the regions. Rescue workers reported blasting away great quantities of rocks to effect a passage through roads blocked by mountain slides. Scattered through the devastated areas to prevent disorder while authorities are endeavoring to bring a semblance of order out of chaos.

The first of the shocks occurred in Southern Serbia Friday night, when scores of casualties and much property damage was reported from the towns of Demikapir, Velodovo, Ghevehlil, Strumitza, Mirovaca. The recurrent and violent shocks early Sunday morning completed the devastation in these communities.

TOKIO, March 9.—Houses and chimneys crashed in northern Japan today during a violent earthquake, but no casualties were reported.

The shock centered in the province of Hokkaido and was felt as far south as Tokyo. It broke telegraph and telephone communications in northern sections, and damaged seismologic apparatus.

The towns of Hakodate and Aomori were reported badly damaged. The populace of Aomori rushed in to the streets, panic-stricken.

AUTOIST HURT WHEN CAR CROWDED FROM SPRINGFIELD PIKE

Russell R. Bales, 27, of 917 N. Detroit St., is recovering from painful injuries received when his sedan was crowded off the Springfield-Xenia Pike at a curve north of the municipal waterworks plant and was wrecked about 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

Bales suffered a deep laceration on the forehead, a dislocated left shoulder, his left arm was fractured in several places and he sustained severe bruises and cuts over the body.

He was returning to Xenia from Yellow Springs when another auto attempted to pass him. Bales said the second car crowded him to the side of the highway. The sedan skidded off the pike, tore down a fence for a considerable distance and finally crashed into a pole. The car did not upset but was virtually wrecked. The force of the impact snapped the pole.

The driver of the second machine, alleged to have been responsible for the accident, drove on without stopping. It is said.

The crash occurred in front of the home of Brice Linkhart and members of the Linkhart family brought the injured man to his home in Xenia, where Dr. Frank M. Chambliss, brother-in-law of Bales, gave him medical attention.

STORM CENTER HITS EASTWARD; OHIO ON STORM'S OUTER EDGE

accompanied the storm pounded mountainous waves against the Lake Michigan shoreline in Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana, forcing ships to cover and doing thousands of dollars of damage to piers, breakwaters and docks.

Six states, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan bore the brunt of the blizzard. Hundreds of linemen were required to repair snarled communication and power lines in many sections throughout the area.

Thousands of abandoned automobiles, almost buried in drifts, dotted Illinois, Southern Wisconsin, Iowa and Indiana highways and farmers gave shelter to their occupants until plows could free the vehicles.

The heavy precipitation was regarded as a boon to the drought-stricken corn belt area. Farmers looked to the heavy blanket of snow to counteract the effects of the protracted drought which had threatened to delay spring crops.

COLUMBUS, O., March 9.—Ohio today remained on the outer brim of the season's severest blizzard, as yet unburst but still threatened by a storm that whistled and whirled up and down all the rest of the Midwest yesterday.

Sharp gusts of wind that forced the entire state to quicken its pace enroute to work this morning threatened at any moment to wheel about and strike Ohio with some of the extreme snow and cold which they visited upon Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan yesterday. Snow furries, stragglers from the same storm that buried other parts of the Midwest in snow-drifts yesterday, were to continue in Ohio today, but the snow and the rain both, Weatherman Alexander indicated, would be "intermittent."

Last night's irregular snow left a white covering on most of the state this morning and the blustery wind sent the mercury tumbling in thermometers in every part of the state.

Ohio tomorrow morning probably will find even more snow on its doorstep than it observed today, although there was no indication in today's forecast for the state that the snow will be piled in huge drifts like those reported in other parts of the blizzard area.

Today's skies, the forecast said, were to be "mostly cloudy," with continuing snow flurries in the east and extreme north portions tonight.

Tomorrow's temperature, the weatherman predicted, will climb, slowly but surely, particularly in the southwest regions of Ohio.

Snow in Columbus today was but an inch deep and the temperature at its lowest point was twenty-seven degrees. The discarding of topcoats and spring finery for overcoats and heavy furs was due principally to a biting wind that whipped across Ohio from the West where the blizzard did its real damage.

MRS. LOTTIE GLASS DIES IN JAMESTOWN

Mrs. Lottie Stewart Glass, 86, widow of James A. Glass, died at her home on E. Washington St., Jamestown, Saturday evening at 6:45 o'clock. She had been ill two years from a complication of diseases and had suffered a stroke of paralysis Thursday morning. She remained unconscious until the time of her death.

Mrs. Glass had been a resident of Jamestown twenty years. She is survived by three sons: Harry and Andrew Glass, Springfield and Oscar Glass, Jamestown. A sister, Mrs. Susan Lucas, Bowersville and seventeen grandchildren also survive. Her husband preceded her in death three years and four children also preceded her in death.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Church of Christ, Jamestown, of which she was a member. Burial will be made in the Jamestown Cemetery.

SCOUT CIRCUS WILL SHOW INDIAN EVENT AND CLOWN FEATURE

Interest is growing daily in the second annual Boy Scout Circus Friday night, March 13, at the Wittenberg College field house. The circus will be staged by 900 Boy Scouts representing sixty-eight troops in the five counties of Tecumseh Council and will furnish two hours of entertainment for parents, friends and relatives of Scouts in this section.

A feature will be a special Indian event known as the Pawnee Hunt ceremony which will be staged with full Indian regalia and paint with teepees standing and the usual array of objects to be found in an authentic Pawnee village.

Sixteen girls from Roosevelt Junior High School will take part in the event, taking the parts of Indian squaws in full Indian dress. True ceremonies and dances of the Pawnee tribe will be depicted.

The comedy relief for the circus will be provided by Troop 30 of South Charleston under direction of Arthur Duffy, and A. B. Womacks. The entire troop of clowns and acrobats will perform following almost every event on the program. The fun will start immediately after the third event and will follow through the whole performance. An excellent clown band will be included.

EAST END NEWS

MRS. JAMES HARRIS Correspondent Tel. 91-R

Mrs. Bertie Anderson Scott passed away Sunday morning at 6:40 o'clock at her residence, 438 E. Third St., the result of apoplexy. She was the daughter of George and Elizabeth Anderson of Yellow Springs and had been a resident of Xenia about nine months. She is survived by her husband, Harry Scott, one sister, Mrs. Daisy Pettiford of Xenia and one son Roger Greene by a former marriage. She was a member of the Zion Baptist Church, Yellow Springs, and of the Zion Workers Club. Funeral services will be held at the Zion Church at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon with interment in Glen Forest Cemetery, Yellow Springs.

Mr. George P. Sanford died last Friday of apoplexy, after being stricken the day before. He passed away at the home of Mrs. Ora Craig, Columbus Pike, where he boarded. He had been a resident here about one year coming from Stuebenville, O. He was employed as tender of the new armory recently built. He was a World War veteran and served nine months over seas. Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Sally Sanford of Huntington, W. Va., two brothers, S. E. Sanford, Mobile, Ala., and B. J. Sanford, Auburn, Ala. Funeral services will be held at the J. C. Johnson funeral home Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in charge of the John Roan of Pst., No. 517. Interment in Cherry Grove Cemetery.

Mr. Blanchard Baker, son of Mrs. Mamie E. Baker, N. Columbus St., is in New York City where he is assistant secretary of a Y. M. C. A. there and is attending Columbia University. He is a graduate of East High School, this city.

The pre-revival services at the First A. M. E. Church Sunday afternoon, were filled with enthusiasm for the coming revival services. The Rev. Mr. Stewart spoke in a complimentary way of the progressive church, the Rev. Mr. Perdue of "He That Wineth Souls is Wise"; Rev. J. H. Harris said: "Without the Holy Spirit we can do nothing"; Rev. Mr. Perry said: "Without faith it is impossible to please God." An appreciative audience was present, although the weather was very inclement. The Rev. S. A. Amos, pastor, had charge of the service. United choirs furnished music. Mrs. Lucy Bramlette presided at the piano.

Monday evening, promptly at 7:30 the city wide union revival will begin at the Zion Baptist Church. The devotional and song

COP CURBS COUGH

Gets quick relief thru Triple Action

"During a recent blizzard I caught a beauty. What a cough! I was miserable. The drug-gist on my beat gave me a bottle of Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. In less than no time—in fact after the first swallow—I began to get better. The soreness in my head, nose and throat disappeared—and very soon I stopped coughing altogether. Smith Brothers' is great stuff for coughs and colds all right!" J. V. Ahlquist, Rockford, Ill.

MOLNAR'S PLAY IS LAID IN MYTHICAL EUROPEAN NATION

Members of the Xenia Little Theater Guild who are present at the presentation of "The Swan," by Molnar Tuesday evening at City Hall Theater will be transported to one of those mythical principalities of Central Europe which have been so popular with novelists and playwrights in the past, but the days of "Graustark" and "The Prisoner of Zenda" are gone and the theme of "The Swan" is less romantic than realistic.

It tells of a mother whose love for her children makes her ambitious for them, the head of one of those exiled royal families to whom the very name of Napoleon is anathema and because he, in his time, dethroned so many kings, she is determined to restore the position of her children by marrying her daughter to a reigning prince and her contrivances to that end make up the play. If, as has been suggested, Molnar has taken a certain Balkan queen as a model for his leading character, that only makes the play more amusing.

"The Swan" is the Guild's most ambitious undertaking to date and it is hoped that the play will be well attended Tuesday evening. Membership tickets may still be bought and used to the full this season since more than one person can be admitted on one ticket.

CHILDREN INJURED WHEN CARS COLLIDE ALONG PIKE SUNDAY

Four persons were injured, none seriously, in a triple auto collision on the Dayton-Xenia Pike, near the entrance to Kil Kare Park, three miles west of Xenia, at 5:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Esther Beck, 12 and her sister, Dorothy, 8, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Beck, Dayton, suffered minor injuries when the sedan in which they were riding with their parents, went into a ditch but did not upset, Dorothy being out on the forehead and Esther receiving minor body bruises. The injured girls were taken to Miami Valley Hospital at Dayton but their conditions were reported by hospital attaches as not serious.

Miss Mayme Bankerd, Mrs. Katherine Bankerd and Betty Wilson, occupants of another car involved in the accident, were also hurt. Miss Bankerd receiving fractures of several ribs on the left side and bruises, while Mrs. Bankerd and the Wilson girl suffered bruises.

The accident was reported to have occurred when the Beck sedan, traveling toward Dayton, attempted to pass an auto driven by Claude Baker, 154 N. Garland Ave., Dayton being driven in the same direction, and sidestepped a coach operated by Mrs. Raymond Wilson, Spring Valley, coming toward Xenia.

Mrs. Katherine Bankerd, Miss Mayme Bankerd and Betty Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson, all of Xenia, were passengers in Mrs. Wilson's auto. Sheriff John Baughn and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, who investigated the accident, learned the Beck sedan struck the rear end of the coach, precipitating a three-way collision which also involved the car operated by Baker.

The accident occurred in front of the home of Harry Ater.

Mr. Norris Brown, Hill St., has accepted a position in the editorial department at the Gazette, starting upon his new duties Monday.

Mrs. Jesse Cline, near Yellow Springs, who has been seriously ill at her home since December is improved and is now able to be out.

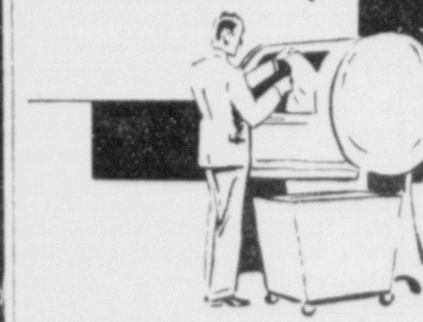

Alma and Gladys, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rheubert, are ill with the mumps at their home on Chestnut St.

Richard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Legeless, N. West St., is ill at his home suffering from the mumps.

Our Laundress changes the water 9 Times Does Yours?

Imagine using 600 gallons of pure rainsoft water for ONE washing! No wonder clothes washed our way are cleaner.

First, a luke warm rinse to loosen the dirt; then four baths in pure, abundant suds, and finally four or five rinses, making at least nine changes of filtered, rainsoft water. Why there isn't a laundress living who could endure such physical labor, not to mention the expense and trouble of heating the water. And of course each color and fabric is laundered separately in the best scientific way. No wonder clothes washed our way are cleaner and last longer.

ALLEGED AUTO THIEF CAUGHT BY XENIA POLICE EARLY ON MONDAY

Trapped in a box car by Xenia police who surrounded a Baltimore and Ohio freight train upon its arrival here from Washington C. H., early Monday morning, Ora Kelly, 25, of 47 W. Tenth St., Wells, O., wanted in that city for auto theft, was captured by local authorities.

An unsuccessful attempt had been made to apprehend the fugitive at Washington C. H. early Monday, following which Xenia police were notified that Kelly had "hopped" a freight train due to arrive in this city about 8 a. m.

When the train arrived at the Xenia station Patrolman Fred Jones and Day Desk Sergeant Ernest Mangan were on hand to meet it, Police Chief O. H. Cornwell, who was enroute to police headquarters from his home, joined his brother officers and a search of the train was begun.

Patrolman Jones discovered the fugitive hiding in a box car but Kelly darted out of the car and under the train, ignoring two shots fired by the officer. Emerging on the other side, Kelly found himself facing a revolver in the hand of Mangan who, with Chief Cornwell, was patrolling the opposite side of the train.

Mangan handcuffed the prisoner, who subsequently made another half-hearted attempt to break away before he was finally lodged in a cell at police headquarters. Xenia police learned that the auto he is charged with having stolen at Wellston was later recovered at Chillicothe, Kelly was supposed to have had two guns in his possession when he left Wellston, but he is said to have lost one at Chillicothe and the other at Washington C. H. He was unarmed when apprehended here.

Kelly is being detained here, pending the arrival of Wellston officers Monday or Tuesday.

EDWARD G. MOON IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Funeral services for Edward G. Moon, 61, who died Saturday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock at his home two and one-half miles northeast of Jamestown, were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the M. P. Church, Bowersville, in charge of the Rev. C. A. Arthur. Short services were held at the Moon home at 1 o'clock and burial was made in Port William Cemetery.

Mr. Moon had been in ill health for a year and suffered a stroke of apoplexy a week ago. He had spent his entire life in the vicinity of Jamestown and Bowersville and had been a member of the Bowersville M. P. Church since sixteen years of age.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Emma Wilson Moon, a daughter, Mrs. John Gray, near Jamestown; two sons, Oscar C. Moon, Fairfield; Robert A. Moon, Bowersville; a brother, C. H. Moon, Xenia and two sisters, Mrs. Rose LeValley, Mayaville, Okla., and Mrs. Arthur Harness, Bowersville. Eighteen grandchildren also survive.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A man shall not be established by wickedness; but the root of the righteous shall not be moved.

A virtuous woman is a crown to her husband; but she that maketh ashamed is as rottenness in his bones—Proverbs, xii, 3, 4.

LOVE, MARRIAGE, DIVORCE

In the old time novels we used to read how the romantic young couple married and lived happily forever after. The golden hues of sentimental romance were supposed to always prove lasting. It was conceived if two people really loved each other, the tie would prove binding for a lifetime.

How far short of that ideal many marriages prove today! The wedded pair thought when they married that they truly loved each other. But in a multitude of cases, it is soon discovered that the feeling was a very transient one. They were attracted to each other for various reasons, but when they have lost their novelty, there is nothing left.

They find that their tastes are not congenial and their tempers not adjusted to married life. They are not interested in the same things. Then if neither one of them has learned to "bear and forbear," they are soon saying harsh and bitter things. Next come the dreary days of a divorce suit.

People are still united by ties of real affection and attachment. There are a multitude of happily married people, whose affairs never get into the newspapers, who have no desire for new marital adventures, but who will gladly cleave to their husbands and wives until death doth part.

It is better to delay marriage until that kind of love appears. It is of course true that many of the finest women are overlooked in marriage, a condition that suggests that our customs relating to courtship are still inappropriate. But in the majority of cases, the men and women who are capable of making good wives and husbands, usually attract some worthy mate. People will get far more happiness out of life, and avoid much sorrow and discontent, if they hold their impulses in check until they find the real love that shows signs of permanency.

"ANDY" IN COURT

Probably no trial being conducted in any real court during recent weeks, has aroused as much popular interest as the imaginary breach of promise suit figuring in the famous "Amos and Andy" feature. Millions of people have been thrilled. Engagements have been postponed, dinner and supper hours adjusted, so that the people could get the latest developments in the case of Madam Queen against Andy Brown.

While the whole country laughs at Andy's fatal propensity for getting into "messes," something in his nature arouses sympathy, and public sentiment has hoped for his release from the toils of his former enchanter.

The young men who have had the ingenuity to conceive these characters and make them seem so lifelike, have done a most remarkable job. Their originality and the cleanness of their entertainment, entitle them to the hearty congratulations of the country.

POLICE COURAGE

Police officers are all the time performing acts of courage which the general public fails to appreciate. A few days ago a New York policeman entered a Bronx cafe in his pursuit of gangsters, and ordered a dozen men to get down on their knees. Searching them, he found they were carrying revolvers and automatic pistols. He took chances in so doing, as in many cases those armed men would have let fly at him.

Police officers are constantly venturing into dark and dangerous places where for all they know some armed man may be waiting for them. It takes courage to be a policeman. The community calls on him for its dangerous work. Public sympathy should go out to him in his struggles to put down the defiant criminal element.

ALL of US

I HAVE NO FEAR

Every day I cross San Francisco bay. In storm and calm, in sunshine and fog and darkness, morning and afternoon, I walk upon a boat and take my seat and wait while the ferry leaves its slip and drives across the waves and comes smoothly into another slip on the other side.

I have no fear, nothing has ever happened to any ferry on which I have ridden. I have such faith in that man up there in the pilot house, that quiet, gray-headed fellow, that I rarely even think of him.

He will take us across, I know. He knows the way. He knows channels and shoals and islands and markings along the shores.

And he knows those forces, too, that are quite unknown to me. He understands that beneath these quite surfaces of the bay, there are tides and currents that change during the day and during the year and are never quite the same. And even this great boat on which we ride, must yield to those strong forces.

PILOT UNDERSTANDS CURRENTS

I have observed that he does not take a straight course from pier to pier. He takes his ferry on a line that is a wide curve from shore to shore from his brave start to its quiet ending. Sometimes he seems so far off his course that it does not seem likely he ever will come into the slip.

But he does, he has always done so.

He has fought the current in the early part of his voyage and at the end he lets it swing him easily and smoothly to the small port where his passengers wish to go. He knows those rivers that flow within the quieter waters and he knows when to oppose them and when to use them.

HE KNOWS WHERE HE'S GOING

And as it is with him, so might it be with us. We have forces within us that no one sees, of which we ourselves are at times but dimly aware—strong currents that could sweep us far from our course if we would let them take control, passions and powers, deep yearnings and fatal impulses. We can use them, if we know how to do it. We can let them destroy us, too.

That captain on the ferry has less than 20 minutes for his short trip, but every moment is important for his purpose. We have years and years for our adventure, and we do not know which of our moments are little and which are tremendous with meaning. He knows where he is going, but often we do not know our goal.

But if we do not know exactly where we are going, surely we should try to know what's beneath the surface of our lives—and should aim to be as steady in our purpose as that pilot of our ferry.

THE QUESTION BOX

Central Press Wash. Bureau

Answers to questions on information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

What countries were involved in "The War of Jenkins' Ear" and why was it so called?

"The War of Jenkins' Ear" was the popular name of the war between Spain and Great Britain in 1739, which was occasioned chiefly by the complaint of Robert Jenkins, an English ship captain, that he had lost an ear and had undergone other tortures at the hands of the Spaniards. This outbreak was swallowed up in the War of the Austrian Succession.

PORTO RICO

What is the official currency in Porto Rico?

Although both American and Spanish money are used, the American is the official currency in Porto Rico.

WASHINGTON

Of what church was George Washington a member?

George Washington was a member of the Christ Protestant Episcopal church, Alexandria, Va., but the exact nature of his religious opinions is a subject of controversy.

WRITER

Who was "The Daughter of the Confederacy"?

Virina Anne Jefferson Davis (1864-98) was known as "The Daughter of the Confederacy." Her father was Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederate States of America. She was educated abroad and was a musician, a painter and an author.

CLOUDS OVER GOTHAM
NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—I detect the statistical mind. Make that why I'm everlastingly encountering it.

A man backed me up in a corner the other day to tell me that on an average "dirty day" in New York there are about two tons of black impurity suspended in the air over every square mile—perhaps 500 tons over the metropolitan area. This dirt intercepts the sunlight. The chimneys in the metropolitan area every day send out about 1,600 tons of sulphurous and sulfuric acids, which corrode metal roofs, disintegrate stone buildings, rot drying laundry, irritate throats and destroy plant life.

The cost of the direct damage due to smoke in Tammany Town is estimated at $10 to $20 per capita per year, in extra laundry, cleaning, painting and replacement of roofs.

I don't know whether you find all that interesting.

But it was passed to me, as I say, and I'm handing it along, not wishing to stagger through life with a secret like that locked in my heart.

The following advertisement appeared the other morning under Situations Wanted—Female: "Woman, middle-aged, German-American, seeks position where initiative and a lot of talk is required. No canvassing."

Make your own wise crack on that one.

"Ah thought yo tol' me dat hoss couldn't lose?"

"Ah knows Ah tol' yo dat; but it seems de hoss developed mo' versatility den Ah give him credit fo'."

TIPTOEING THROUGH THE JULEPS!

"LAME DUCK" SESSIONS NEVER WERE INTENDED, STEWART IS CONVINCED

CHARLES F. STEWART

WASHINGTON, March 6.—What ever may be the final fate of "lame duck" sessions of congress, there can be no question that they ought to be abolished—of course by constitutional amendment, that being the only possible method of abolishing them.

Perhaps some folk do not fully understand the "lame duck problem."

Worshippers of everything that already is established, simply BECAUSE it is established, have tried to give the impression that the constitution's framers had some mighty wise idea in their heads when they created the institution of "lame duckness."

Historical research amply proves that they did it by pure accident, which undoubtedly they would have corrected if they had noticed it.

After his defeat in 1930, but while still in congress, Jones was known as a "lame duck," just as Smith will be known as a "lame duck" while still holding over after his 1932 defeat.

As can be seen, "lame ducks" are in session only every other year, and the sessions in which they are in evidence are referred to as "lame duck sessions."

A senator can be a "lame duck" even as a representative is. His term is three times as long, but he is equally lame, while serving out the remaining months of it, after being beaten.

The argument is advanced that there ought to be "lame ducks"—that a senator or a representative never ought to come back to congress after the voters have "repudiated" him, as critics of the system rather harshly express it.

Possibly this is sound reasoning, but there likewise is something to be said against the unceremonious ending of congressional sessions upon a given, inelastic date, whether or not there "ill" is business on hand for congress to transact.

The last session has revealed this weakness strikingly. The legislative jam has been frightful. Laws which should have been passed have been tossed, perforce, into the discard, due to lack of time to consider them. Many others have been passed too hurriedly.

Three months not only is not long enough for congress to do a workmanlike job, but many of its most capable members insist that the ensuing nine months, from March 4 until the first Monday in December is too long for the White House to be left in sole charge of the country.

Without in the least reflecting upon the present chief executive, they maintain that nine months would be a sufficient interval for the wrong kind of president left wholly to his own devices, to do a great deal of damage.

All this is why "lame duck" sessions have been fought for so many years, but it takes a constitutional change to abolish them, and getting the constitution amended always has been a terrific undertaking, except once or twice in American history.

Stuffed Onions or Baked Stuffed Peppers
Buttered Green Beans
Apple-Cabbage Salad
Cake Coffee

This meal may be meatless or nearly so, merely using up the ends of leftover meat.

Today's Recipes

Stuffed Onions, Baked.—Parboil in salt water the required number of uniform, medium-sized Spanish onions. Scoop out part of center. Chop this center. Mix with one-fourth the amount of ham or other chopped meat, one well-beaten egg and one teaspoon salt. In the cavity of each onion put a teaspoon of butter. Fill generously with the meat mixture. Cover with bread crumbs and melted butter. Place in a covered casserole with enough thin cream sauce to half fill the dish. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake until tender. Uncover and brown before serving.

Baked Stuffed Peppers.—Make a white sauce of one and one-half tablespoons butter, one tablespoon flour, three-fourths cup milk and a few drops of lemon juice. Add one seven-ounce can flaked fish. Cut stem ends off four green peppers, remove seeds and fill with fish mixture. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven until brown on top and the peppers tender. Serves four.

White Cake—Wellesley.—Three-fourths cup shortening, one and one-fourth cups sugar, one-half teaspoon baking powder, four eggs, cups cake flour, two and one-fourth teaspoons baking powder, four eggs whites, unbeaten; two-thirds cup cold water, one teaspoon vanilla. Cream shortening thoroughly, add sugar gradually, then the vanilla. Add the egg whites, one at a time, and beat until thoroughly blended. Sift the flour, salt and baking powder together and add alternately with the water. Turn batter into two nine-inch layer cake tins and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for about 30 minutes, decreasing heat if necessary. Put layers together with white mountain cream and frost outside with same. When the frosting has set pour over it three ounces of bitter chocolate melted.

Created By Health Discussions

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

One of the dangers of any kind of health talk is the creation of fear. I agree with the Christian Scientists, at least to this extent, that fear is an actual cause of disease—mental and spiritual, if not bodily.

It is very easy for health writers to fall into this habit. They feel the necessity of emphasizing their point, and there is no better way to do it than to call on the emotions and imagination of their audience. And no emotion is more potent than fear, and no emotion more powerful in arousing imagination.

Particularly dangerous is this practice if there is nothing to be done about the situation after the fear has been aroused. That is why this column says very little about cancer and gives very little support to the propaganda of the Society for the Prevention of Cancer. An illustration of all this is the commonly heard remark that "A cold is not a minor ailment."

Now this is a silly pronouncement. If there is any disease on the face of the earth that is a minor ailment, the common cold is the best example of it. I am aware that it causes a considerable amount of economic loss by keeping many people from work. But that is because it is common, not because it is dangerous. I know that it leads to the list of diseases which cause disability and absence from work in an industrial community. But that does not make it a source of real danger.

The often repeated statement that a cold leads to graver disease is almost utterly without foundation. As is the warning that a neglected cold is fraught with hideous possibilities. Pneumonia is never a sequel of a cold. If pneumonia occurs, it is pneumonia from the beginning. And far from preparing the ground for pneumonia, the immunity reaction given to the body by an attack of cold actually tends to prevent a person from catching pneumonia.

That colds lead to tuberculosis is an equally fallacious piece of reasoning. Tuberculosis may indeed appear to begin by having for its earliest symptoms a tendency to catch numerous colds. But these colds were actually indications of active tuberculosis from the beginning.

The only sequel to a cold that occurs as a possibility is the infection of the nasal sinuses. And in most instances of this kind the sinuses were already infected and the cold simply lighted up the infection. The consequent possibility of middle ear infection must also be admitted, but is certainly rare, considering the enormous number of colds that occur universally.

The argument need not be labored too much. It is a matter of the most common daily observation that colds run their course, and in the vast majority of cases leave no permanent damage behind them.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cent coin for each and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clending, Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: What would you think of my accepting a proposal from a widower with five children, all grown and one grandchild?

"He takes me out occasionally, but most of the tickets to shows are given him. Sometimes I think he is really looking for a housekeeper, as he has two children at home and one at college."

"He drinks but not to excess, and is around 60, I live in the city and he in the country."

"BLUE-EYED NANCY."

If you are as young as the name you signed to your letter, I think you should have better sense than even to consider a proposal from a man so much older, if he doesn't show any by asking you to marry him.

In the first place, if a man around 60 contemplates marrying a woman half his age he must be in his dotage, no matter how young he may seem—and I certainly don't think a man or woman of 60 is old. And you, you would not be suited as companions, and would, besides, probably cause a lot of discussion in his family, as his sons and daughters would not welcome a young stepmother. The proper attitude of a man that age to a young girl is a fatherly one.

If you want a job as housekeeper you can probably get one that pays well and to which there are no strings attached. Personally, I would advise you to answer his proposal with "No, thank you. But I can introduce you to one of mother's friends who needs a home and companion and who would make an excellent housekeeper."

MISERABLE: Speak slowly and as distinctly as possible. Miserable, with your mind on what you are saying, not on how it will sound. That may help you to cure the habit of lisping. If you don't overcome it entirely, bear in mind that many people will consider the

New Frock Neckline Displayed

By GLADYS GLAD

The Parisian couturiers have designed many smart and interesting new necklines for the approaching spring season. But I've a hunch that a goodly portion of the fair sex is going to find these necklines rather trying. For to display them to best advantage, one's neck must be simply perfect in every detail. And the industry with years, whose neck swells in ugly, bulging curves, or the gal who has developed a scrawny, wrinkled "turkey neck," is not going to look smart, no matter how chic and unusual the neckline of her frock.

The really beautiful neck (and the one that every woman should have) is a firm, slender column of smooth flesh. No ugly hollows or pads of fat are permitted to mar its graceful symmetry. And when you glimpse such a neck, you may rest assured that its fair owner knows—and practices—her neck exercises. For it's just as essential that the neck be exercised to keep it firm and youthful as any other part of the body.

If your neck has lost its firm, youthful contours, begin exercising at once. My "Beauty Culture" booklet contains a most effective list of neck exercises. Exercises a few minutes each morning and evening. Watch those hollows and wrinkles fill out, those extra chins and pads of fat disappear.

The carriage of the head is an equally important factor in the formation of the neck contours. The head should be held in a poised and graceful manner, and not allowed to drop disconsolately on the chest. If you keep your head well up and back, you'll discourage any underchin flabbiness or fatness. The following exercises will help to strengthen the supporting throat and chin muscles, and make you more posture conscious.

Clasp your hands behind your head, and pull forward with them while you force your head back. This exercise will bring into play both the neck and the shoulder muscles.

Stand erect, hands at the sides. Look back over your left shoulder, turning the head as far as possible. Repeat on the right.

Stand erect, hands at the sides. Drop the head far forward on the chest. Then slowly raise your head backward and upward, until it rests on your back.

For best results neck exercises should always be done with slow, graceful, stretching movements.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Warts

Dolores: Warts are caused by skin infection. It is dangerous for you to attempt to remove them yourself. See a skin specialist about them.

Gain

Tiny and Tim: My methods of gaining weight and developing the bust are too long to print in this brief space. However, they are fully outlined in my booklet on "The New Figure."

Eyelashes

Adele: To promote the growth of your eyelashes, apply a bit of plain vaseline, or odorless and tasteless castor oil to them every night before retiring.

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and 10 cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," 2 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions or beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

MAD LAUGHTER A THRILLING MYSTERY STORY by MILES BURTON

Dick peered over the wall.

CHAPTER 37 Once at Blackfriars, Dick told the driver that he wished to go to Rainham. The man grinned. It was he who had driven the party down to inspect Herdridge's body. "Going to have another look at that there ruined cottage, sir?" he ventured.

"I am, and I am going to take you with me," replied Dick cheerfully. "I've got an idea we might find something interesting there."

"I don't know as we can get the car down that lane from the station, sir," said the man. "We'll have a try, though, if you like."

"No, we'll leave the car at the police station, like as we did before, and walk," replied Dick. "There may be tracks in the lane, and I shouldn't like to obscure them."

The two men walked down the track towards Coldharbour Point. For the first mile or two it was hard and dry, and no traces such as Dick hoped to see were visible upon its surface. But after that it degenerated into a mere cart-track across the marshes. It was not very long before ruts became apparent, evidently of quite recent origin.

"It looks as if somebody had been along here lately, sir," observed the car driver.

"It does indeed," agreed Dick. "What do you make of those wheel tracks?"

"There, man, walked slowly along them for some moments without replying. "There's been a lorry along here, sir," he said at last. "Solid tires, single on the front, twin on the back. Looks as if it had been over the ground twice, sir. Probably it went down to the river and came back again."

"Then I think that our journey has not been wasted," remarked Dick in a tone of satisfaction. "Come on, let's see if we can find out where it stopped."

They followed the tracks down to the sea-wall. There, where the road widened out, were signs of the lorry having been turned. But here again the surface was comparatively hard, and no traces such as Dick hoped to see were visible upon its surface. But after that it degenerated into a mere cart-track across the marshes. It was not very long before ruts became apparent, evidently of quite recent origin.

Here everything was as Dick so vividly remembered it. The doors and windows stood gaping, the general air of ruin and desolation was not alleviated by the slightest sign of human habitation. They peered over the place thoroughly, peering into every corner, but there was no sign that anyone had been near the place since the removal of Herdridge's body.

"That's queer," muttered Dick. "You can't play about with a couple of safes, weighing half a ton each, without leaving some sort of traces behind you. Yet, if they opened the safes down here, they must have done it in the cottage. They would never dare use an oxy-acetylene flare in the open; the whole countryside would have seen the glare. Yet what would they bring them here for, if not to open them?"

"Let's go and have a look at the wharf," he said abruptly. They retraced their steps, and Dick peered over the wall at the mud beneath. The tide was rising, as he expected. He had looked up the time of highwater when he had borrowed Sir Edric's Whiteaker, and found that it would be at seven o'clock. The edge of the mud was still uncovered, but Dick searched its surface vainly for any signs of the vanished safes.

"Bit late in the day," remarked Dick, shaking his head. "From Coldharbour Point to some nice quiet spot on the Dutch coast would be about a hundred and fifty nautical miles. At ten-knots—and that's the lowest speed one can allow for a sea-going motor-boat in calm weather like this—that distance would be covered in fifteen hours. I fancy that the stones were safe in Holland by eleven o'clock this morning."

"Of course, I've the greatest admiration for your powers of deduction," said Sir Edric sarcastically. "But suppose you sit down and tell me how you arrived at that conclusion."

"Well, I took your imposing but not very comfortable car for a little run to the messuage or tenement which the Funny Toff selected as a mortuary," replied Dick. "There I found the tracks of a lorry. I don't say for certain that was the lorry, for I'm not sufficiently expert as a sleuth to identify lorries by their tire marks, but it seems fairly likely. There's a deuced sort of wharf, close by, which looks very much as though the safes had been hauled or rolled across it. Now comes the deduction. We have already, you will remember, deduced the existence of a motor-boat of sorts. Now it was high water yesterday evening at about half-past six. At that time the motor-boat could have lain alongside the wharf. I suggest that, in fact, she did so, and that the cases were loaded on to her. If she was big enough to carry them, she was certainly big enough to cross the North Sea in fine weather."

"Look how neatly that disposes of the difficulty of opening the cases. Once out of sight of land, her crew could get busy with their oxy-acetylene flames without the slightest fear of attracting attention. Once they were open, and the stones removed, all that remained to be done was to pitch them overboard. I think you'll agree that I was right when I said that they would never be seen again. As for the lorry, the energetic Pollard is wasting his time, I fancy. It had done its job as the safes were unloaded. It was driven to your romantic Suffolk lane and abandoned, mainly as a convenient way of getting rid of it, but incidentally, with the idea of drawing a red herring across the trail."

For some moments Sir Edric made no reply. "Your imagination seems as brisk as ever, Dick," he said at last. "I don't deny that your theory is possible, even probable, but it seems to me that there are precious few facts to support it. Of course I'll make inquiries all along the riverside, and I'll have a sharp watch kept on every motor-boat, or small steamer for that matter, entering the port, for I take it that they'll come back some time. I confess that I'm glad I brought you back to London."

"Since you dragged me back, I'm going to stay for a few nights," remarked Dick. "If I've earned a good mark this afternoon, may I be rewarded with an opportunity of indulging my idle curiosity? I'd like to have a look at that place in Haddon Garden tomorrow morning. I'd say this evening, but it's already too dark to see properly."

"Yes, I suppose you can go along if you want to," replied Sir Edric. "The place is full of policemen; you'd better take one of my cards, and they'll let you in. Pollard's in Suffolk, as I told you, so there's no fear of your being arrested at sight."

Violin Is Popular - Radio Instrument Is Learned

By MILDRED MASON MONG the notable tendencies of America's radio audience is a constantly increasing liking for violin in programs. In all classes of music, from the classical to the jazz, the violin is being featured, with Paul Whiteman back on the air every Tuesday night playing his violin and the premiere of Jascha Heifetz over the air late last year it seems that the violin is one of the outstanding musical instruments liked by radio audiences.

Albert Spalding, noted violinist, heard over the NBC network a few weeks ago, has one of the most valuable violins in existence. It was made in 1737 by Joseph Guarnerius del Gesu and is valued at $40,000. The violin used by David Rubinfeld, characterized as "the singing violin" is valued at $10,000 and is "jinxed" according to Rubinfeld, who claims it has brought him nothing but good luck since it has been in his hands.

There is one outstanding violinist, though, who holds out against the lure of the radio. He is Fritz Kreisler, who has turned down many valuable offers with the same answer, "I am not interested in a broadcast as yet."

British Concerts Heard Three concerts from across the seas are scheduled for March 9, 10 and 11 over the NBC network through the cooperation of the British Broadcasting Corp. The first of these was Monday afternoon from 4:35 to 5 o'clock. Tuesday afternoon at 2:45 the Gershwin Parkington quintet will give a fifteen minute recital over WEAF and associated stations and Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock the BBC Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Oscar Fried, will be heard in a program from Queens Hall over WEAF and associated stations. The British concerts will be projected across the Atlantic by the BBC shortwave station GSWW at Chelmsford.

Present Hawaiian Numbers Frank Crumit and Julia Sander will go slightly Hawaiian in the Blackstone Plantation program Tuesday evening over the NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati, at 8 o'clock. Among their numbers will be "Ukulele Lady," "Why Have You Forgotten Wai-kiki?", "I'm Down in Honolulu Looking Them Over" and "Isle of Golden Dreams."

Feature Symphony The second movement of Borodin's Symphony No. 2 in B Minor will be broadcast for the first time in America Tuesday evening when the Philco Symphony Orchestra presents it as part of its program over the Columbia network through WKRC, Cincinnati, at 9:30 o'clock. The symphony was broadcast in part from Queens Hall, London, and rebroadcast here several months ago, but its title was not announced and as it was broadcast in the afternoon few music lovers heard it.

Takes New Name Frank Stewart, new WLW announcer, was born Zwyrget. He has taken the new name to make it easier for the radio announcer to remember him.

NEW DRUG COMPANY IS INCORPORATED

Snider and Sayre, Inc., a newly formed drug company which will reopen and operate a drug store, about March 15, was granted incorporation papers at Columbus Saturday.

The incorporation papers were filed by David P. Haber, 905 American Savings Bldg., Dayton, and the incorporators are Paul Snider and his cousin, Charles A. Snider, both of Dayton, and H. L. Sayre, Xenia. The corporation received authority to issue 250 shares of no par value stock.

Figures, drugs and merchandise of the Sayre store were recently purchased at an assignee's sale by Paul Snider.

The Theater

There seems to be a challenge in the talking films that intrigues many of the older stars of stage and silent pictures, resulting in many famous names of other years reappearing in the casts of forthcoming pictures.

Clara Kimball Young, whose Bennett, Mrs. Pat Campbell is also trying talkies as the aunt of Lois Moran in "The Dancers." Robert Edeson, dialogue and stage director with Fox, still takes a turn at acting now and then. Hobart Bosworth, identified with pictures since their inception is seen occasionally in talkies roles, most recently in "Just Imagine." Charles Winninger and George MacFarlane are other veterans often seen now and the writer saw two old friends recently not seen for many months, Stuart Holmes and Winter Hall.

When Farnum left the screen several years ago he intended to make it permanent but he was persuaded to return to play the part

Warner Baxter will play the leading role in "I Surrender" for Fox which is the film adaptation of Pierre Benoit's novel, "Axelle." Pat O'Brien, New York stage recruit who is playing a reporter in "The Front Page" made the real "front page" himself recently when he was arrested in the raid on William Boyd's house. When real reporters called him up, he banged up the receiver. Anita Page is running around with Carl Laemmle, Jr.

Twenty Years '11- Ago -'31

Dr. J. R. McCormick left for New Orleans, where he will enjoy a short rest.

Mrs. Allen Haines was elected president of the "Mothers Circle" formed by the women of Spring Hill for the Spring Hill school district.

Hundreds of men are being laid off by the Pennsylvania Railroad and already a number of Xenia employees have been affected.

Cedarville College basketball were beaten easily by Denison 24 to 21.

MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL

of King Arthur with Will Rogers in Mark Twain's classic "A Connecticut Yankee." Farnum starred in "The Lone Star Ranger," "The Last of the Duques" and "Riders of the Purple Sage" for the silent screen.

Robert Warwick retired and spent several years abroad after a long period as a star in silent pictures and on the stage. Now he has returned to play the lead in "Not Exactly Gentlemen," a Fox picture. Thomas Meighan has been in retirement hardly long enough to be forgotten but is returning shortly to be seen in "Young Sinners" and "Daddy Long Legs," also for Fox.

Franklin Farnum, serial and western star in silents following a stage career is coming out of retirement with Warwick in "Not Exactly Gentlemen" and Lew Cody, after a long absence due to ill health, will play one of the leads in the same picture.

Many other famous names from the stage have been attracted to Hollywood by the talkies. Nance O'Neill plays the mother of Warner Baxter in his next, "Their Mad Moment." Cecilia (Cissie) Loftus went west to work in "East Lynne" and her next is "Doctor's Wives" in which Baxter plays with Joan

What the NEW HUMIDOR PACK *means to Camel Smokers

COMPARE a package of Camels with any other cigarette and note the difference in the technique of packing.

Note that Camels are completely enclosed in an outer transparent cover of moisture-proof cellophane and sealed air-tight at every point.

We call this outer shell the Humidor Pack. It differs from the ordinary cellophane pack and while it is egg-shell thin, it means a lot in terms of cigarette enjoyment.

It means, for instance, that evaporation is checkmated and that Salt Lake City can now have as good Camels as Winston-Salem.

While Camels are made of a blend of the choicest Turkish and mellowest domestic tobaccos, it is highly important, if you are to get full benefit of this quality, that these cigarettes come to you with their natural moisture content still intact.

The Humidor Pack insures that. It prevents the fine tobaccos of Camels from drying out and losing any of their delightful flavor.

Aside from cheap tobacco, two factors in a cigarette can mar the smoker's pleasure:

Fine particles of peppery dust if left in the tobacco by inefficient cleaning methods sting and irritate delicate throat membrane.

Dry tobacco, robbed of its natural moisture by scorching or by evaporation gives off a hot smoke that burns the throat with every inhalation.

We take every precaution against these factors here at Winston-Salem.

A special vacuum cleaning apparatus removes dust and now the new Humidor Pack prevents dryness.

Check the difference yourself

It is a very simple matter to check the difference between Humidor Packed Camels and other ordinary dry cigarettes.

First of all you can feel the difference as you roll the cigarettes between your fingers. Camels are full-bodied and pliable. A dry cigarette crumbles under pressure and sheds tobacco.

If you will hold a cigarette to each ear and roll them with your fingers you can actually hear the difference.

The real test of course is to smoke them. And here's where the new Humidor Pack proves a real blessing to the smoker.

As you inhale the cool, fragrant smoke from a Camel you get all the mildness and magic of the fine tobaccos of which it is blended.

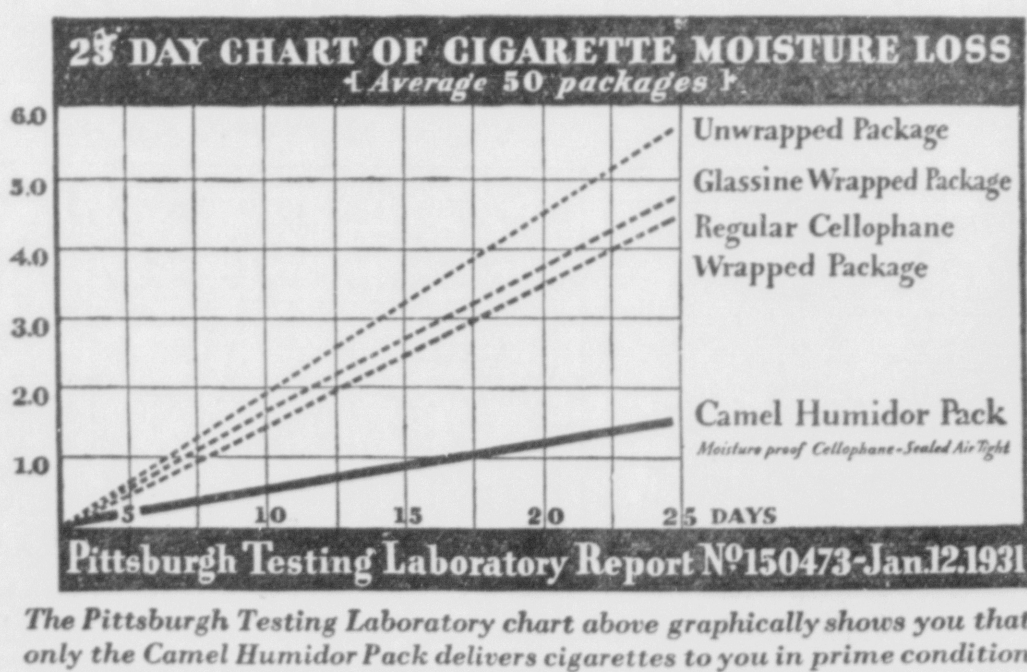

But when you draw in the hot smoke from a dried cigarette see how flat and brackish it is by comparison and how harsh it is to your throat.

If you are a regular Camel smoker you have already noticed what proper condition of the cigarette means.

But if you haven't tried Camels in the new Humidor Pack you have a new adventure with Lady Nicotine in store.

Switch your affections for just one day, then go back to your old love tomorrow if you can.
